Use of ICT in the Department of Commerce

History of Banking Company

- The word 'Bank' can be traced to the French word "Banque" and the Italian word "Banco" meaning "chest" and "bench" respectively. These words sum up the two basic functions that Commercial Banks perform. Chest is a place where valuables are kept, it denotes the safekeeping function. A modern Bank's chest is the portfolio of earning assets. These are the life-blood of a Bank. The word "Banco" suggests a table, a counter or a place of transacting business. With reference to a Bank, these benches consist of a teller's window, a loan officer's desk, a Bank manager's cabin, desk and so on. These benches provide the customers a medium to approach the bank for conducting banking transactions.
- Viewed thus, the two basic functions of a commercial bank consist of (a) providing safekeeping functions and (b) transacting business in money.
